

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Augusto B. Gatmaytan is an MA Anthropology graduate from the Ateneo de Manila University and also a lawyer. Based in Davao City and connected with the Legal Resource Center, he is now also teaching part time at the University of the Philippines in Mindanao.

William A. Longacre is Visiting Professor at the Department of Anthropology and at the Archaeological Studies Program in the University of the Philippines, Diliman from the Department of Anthropology in the University of Arizona, USA, where he was the chair.

Maria Fer Mangabas wrote comparative 'ethnographies of fishing and sharing' in Batanes and the Davao Gulf for her PhD in Social Anthropology from Cambridge University. She teaches at the Department of Anthropology in U.P. Diliman and has also been teaching at the UP Mindanao.

Armand Salvador B. Mijares got his MA in the University of New Mexico and is presently studying for his doctorate at Australia National University. He is one of the founders of the Katipunan ng mga Arkeologist sa Pilipinas (KAPI) and has also been serving as Head of the Terrestrial Archaeology Section in the National Museum and Senior Lecturer at the UP Archaeological Studies Program.

Padmapani L. Perez finished her M.A. in Environmental Anthropology at the University of Kent in Canterbury, England. She is presently pursuing a doctorate at Leiden University in the Netherlands.

Raul Pertierra teaches at the Asian Center, University of the Philippines. He was formerly based at the School of Sociology University of New South Wales, Kensington, Australia and a Visiting Professor at the Ateneo de Manila University.

Wilfredo Torres III finished his MA in Anthropology at the Ateneo de Manila University. He is a member of the faculty at the Notre Dame of Jolo College and currently the Director of Notre Dame of Jolo College's Community Extension Services.