

About the Contributors

Felisa U. Etemadi is a professor in the Political Science Program, Social Sciences Division of the University of the Philippines, Cebu College. She has written papers and monographs on various aspects of urban governance with her involvement in multi-disciplinary researches locally, nationally and internationally. She has served as an international consultant in the ADB project, Enhancing Municipal Services Delivery Capability II.

Eric Gutierrez was Deputy Director of the Institute for Popular Democracy in Manila until 1998. He is now based in Southern Africa working as research and advocacy adviser for the NGO and local government partners of Water Aid in Malawi, Mozambique, and Zambia. He finished his MSc in Social and Political Theory at Birkbeck College, University of London.

Zosimo E. Lee earned his doctorate in philosophy with a dissertation on the political conception of justice of John Rawls. He teaches political philosophy, ethics, and the philosophy of language, among others, at the University of the Philippines, Diliman. He has done research on peace zones in the Philippines and at present his research interests include social categories, collective intentionality and the construction of social reality.

Vicente L. Rafael is a professor of history at the University of Washington in Seattle. He is the author of Contracting Colonialism: Translation and Christian Conversion in Tagalog Society Under Early Spanish Rule; and White Love and other Events in Filipino History, both available from Duke University and Ateneo de Manila University Press. He is currently finishing a book on translation and technology at the origins of Filipino nationalism.

Ma. Lourdes G. Rebullida is a professor at the Department of Political Science and Associate Dean for Administration and External Affairs of the College of Social Sciences and Philosophy, University of the Philippines, Diliman. She finished her M.A. (political science) and Ph.D. (public administration) at the University of the Philippines. She is the principal author of Housing the Urban Poor: Policies, Approaches, Issues (1999).