

About the Contributors

Cleo Calimbahin is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the De La Salle University in Manila. She obtained her PhD at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Her essay, "Capacity and Compromise: COMELEC, NAMFREL and Election Fraud" appeared in the book, The Politics of Change in the Philippines (Anvil 2010). Email: cleo.calimbahin@dlsu.edu.ph

Alejandro N. Ciencia, Jr. is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at UP Baguio. He teaches courses on justice, judicial behavior, and political philosophy. He worked on "Notions of Justice in the Cordillera" for his M.A. thesis. For his dissertation, he wrote "The Philippine Supreme Court and the Mining Act Ruling Reversal." He obtained his B.A. Social Science degree (double major in Philosophy and Political Science) from UP Baguio in 1987 and his M.A. Political Science degree from UP Diliman in 1996. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science from UP Diliman in April 2010. Email: ali\_ciencia@yahoo.com

Antonio P. Contreras is a Full Professor at the Department of Political Science of De La Salle University Manila and received his PhD in Political Science from the University of Hawai'i in Manoa as an East West Center Degree Fellow in 1991. He was a recipient of several fellowship grants and awards, which include a Visiting Fellowship at the East West Center in Hawai'i in 2000, an Asia Fellowship with Chiang Mai University in Thailand from 2000-2001, and a Senior Visiting Fulbright Fellowship at the Department of Political Science of the University of Hawai'i in Manoa in 2009. While his early publications focused on the role of non-state actors in environmental governance, his area of scholarship has shifted to the politics of popular culture and everyday and ordinary lives. Email: antonio.contreras@dlsu.edu.ph

Judith M. de Guzman is a PhD student in Social-Organizational Psychology at the Ateneo de Manila University. As a researcher, she is interested in structural peace, conflict and development. She co-facilitates a long-term research program on the social psychological aspects of the Mindanao conflict, in collaboration with faculty members of Notre Dame of Jolo College in Mindanao and psychology graduate students at the Ateneo de Manila University. Email: judithmddeguzman@yahoo.com

Liza G.F. Lansang is currently a lecturer at the Department of Political Science of the University of the Philippines, Diliman, and at the College of International, Humanitarian and Development Studies (CIHDS) of Miriam College. She completed her Master's degree in International Relations in 1998 at the Universiteit van Amsterdam. A research fellow of the Institute of Strategic and Development Studies (ISDS), she also did research on the role of Japanese Official Development Assistance (ODA) to enhance human resources development in the Philippines while serving as visiting researcher in 2002 at the Graduate School of International Cooperation Studies (GSICS) at Kobe University. Email: lgflansang@yahoo.com

Cristina Jayme Montiel is a professor of peace/political psychology and has been teaching at the Ateneo de Manila University for more than 30 years. She has just completed a book on Peace Psychology in Asia (Springer, 2009), and is managing editor of the Encyclopedia of Peace Psychology (Wiley-Blackwell, work in progress). Her teaching and research experiences cover academic visits to Xiamen University in China, National University of Malaysia, University of Hawaii, Ohio State University, Georgetown University, Whitman College, Technical University of Chemnitz in Germany, and The Australian National University. She was also in the first group of senior research fellows of the Nippon Foundation's Asian Public Intellectuals program. Email: cmontiel@ateneo.edu