

About the Contributors

Benedict J. Tria Kerkvliet is professor and head of the Department of Political and Social Change, Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies, The Australian National University. His latest book is The Power of Everyday Politics: How Vietnamese Peasants Transformed National Policy (Ithaca, NY: Cornell University Press, 2005). This is also available in Asia from the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Singapore.

Patricio N. Abinales is associate professor at the Center for Southeast Asian Studies, Kyoto University, Japan. His latest book is State and Society in the Philippines (Rowman and Littlefield, Maryland and Anvil Publishing, Philippines) which he co-authored with Donna J. Amoroso. His current research is on gender and social violence inside the Filipino elite.

Aries A. Arugay is assistant professor at the Department of Political Science, University of the Philippines-Diliman. His masteral thesis titled, The Politics of Societal Accountability in the Philippines, probed into the role of civil society and independent media in the ouster of former president Estrada. He is also currently Research Fellow at the Institute for Strategic and Development Studies, Inc. (ISDS) and serves as a technical assistant to the Presidential Adviser tasked to implement the Feliciano Commission Recommendations.