

About the Contributors

Rosalie Arcala Hall is Associate Professor in Political Science at the University of the Philippines in the Visayas, Miagao, Iloilo. She earned her Ph.D. in public and International Affairs at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts, U.S.A. in 2002. She completed a research study on the Japanese Self-Defense Forces under the Asian Public Intellectual (API) Fellowship in 2005 and has been awarded the North-South Dialogue research fellowship for 2006 under the Austrian Exchange Service to study the deployment of the Austrian armed forces in international humanitarian and disaster relief missions.

Dennis D. Trinidad is Associate Professor and Vice-chair of the International Studies Department of De La Salle University-Manila. He completed his Doctor of Philosophy in Law at Tsukuba University as Japanese Government scholar in 2004. He specializes in political economy and comparative politics of East Asia.

Christopher Skene obtained a Ph.D. from the University of Hongkong in international political economy. He has written articles on the Philippines published in Journal of Contemporary Asia, International Journal of Human Resource Management, and Asia Pacific Business Review focusing on how international political and economic forces influence power structures within the country, particularly with respect to democracy and labor issues. He served as visiting professor of political science at De La Salle University-Manila in 2005.

Gene Lacza Pilapil is assistant professor at the Department of Political Science, University of the Philippines-Diliman where he teaches courses on Philippine government and politics, the interplay of democratization and market reforms in Latin America and Eastern Europe, and modern political theory.