

THE PHILIPPINE ECONOMIC JOURNAL
The Journal of the Philippine Economic Society

Number Nineteen

First Semester 1971

Vol. X, No. 1

ARTICLES

- The International Demand for Philippine Coconut Products:
 An Aggregate Analysis Aida E. Recto
- Aspects of Philippine Tax and Expenditure Policy Gerardo P. Sicat
- A Note on Usury Legislation in the Philippines Sue Van Atta
- Seasonality and Underemployment in Monsoon Asia Harry Oshima
- High Capital-Intensity, Productive Efficiency, and Employment Il Sakong
- The Simple Economics of Land Reform:
 The Expropriation-Compensation Process
 and Income Distribution Scott M. Eddie

NEWS

All manuscripts and correspondence relating to the regular issue of this Journal should be addressed to:
The Editor, The Philippine Economic Journal, c/o The School of Economics, University of the Philippines, Quezon City D-505, Philippines.

Subscription outside the Philippines are at the rate of U.S. $5.00 per year, seairmail postage included.
The Journal is published twice a year.

IPC Papers No. 9

Estancia in Transition: Economic Growth in a Rural Philippine Community

6 x 9 / 113 pages text / 11 pages illustrations
/ paperback / ₱10.00 in the Philippines /
US $2.75 abroad

David L. Szanton assesses the growth of Estancia, Iloilo, from an insignificant fishing community to an important production and marketing center for the fishing industry of the Philippines. This anthropological study takes into consideration not only the accepted indicators of growth but also the social and cultural conditions such as those Szanton found in Estancia.