

*An Evaluation of the Incentives Program of the Model City Population Planning
Project of Cagayan de Oro*
ALFONSO C. DEL FIERRO, JR.
Research Institute for Mindanao Culture
Xavier University

Moderator
IDA M. L. SIASON
National Economic and Development
Authority
Iloilo

SUNDAY, MAY 1, P.M.
Open Papers II

A Profile of Migration in Electrified Rural Areas, Socioeconomic Implications
MAGDALENA CABARABAN
Research Institute for Mindanao Culture
Xavier University

*Theoretical Issues Involved in Current Research Investigation on Dual vs.
Single Estimation and Purposive Concealment*
FRANCIS C. MADIGAN, S.J.
Research Institute for Mindanao Culture
Xavier University

WELCOME ADDRESS
PSS National Convention, Iloilo City

LOURDES R. QUISUMBING
Dean, Graduate School of Education
De La Salle University

"How pleasant it is when friends come together." I should like to apply these words from the Chinese sage Confucius to this occasion. How pleasant and gratifying it is when social scientists, students deeply interested in Philippine society, members and friends of the PSS come together in the spirit of true professionalism to share, exchange and discuss theories, questions, problems, findings and in-

Generative Rules for Household Formation in a Tagalog Community
RONALD S. HIMES
Institute of Philippine Culture
Ateneo de Manila University

Continuities in Philippine Reciprocity
ERIC CASIÑO
Council for Living Traditions

Moderator
ROSARIO CABRERA
University of Santo Tomas

MONDAY, MAY 2, A.M.
Open Forum

Recommendations for Policy Making and for Future Research

Moderator
RICARDO G. ABAD
Institute of Philippine Culture
Ateneo de Manila University

sights from various areas within their disciplines in order to address themselves towards socially sound and socially committed development policies and programs.

The theme of the 1977 PSS National Convention, "The Use (and Misuse) of Social Science Research in Policy Making and Program Planning," points out the need of providing theoretical and methodological perspectives, of using research data and scientific approaches to policies and development programs pertinent to current Philippine social problems and realities: population, ethnic communities, the teaching of social science, social inequality, sex roles, working women, and the like. This convention therefore hopes to be of significant contribution to policy science in general and development programming in particular.

This is the first time in many years that PSS "has gone to the people." Lately, people in the provinces had to go to Manila to be able to participate in the society's activities such as its lecture series, study groups, and conventions.

Years back, the PSS made it a point to alternate its convention sites between Manila in the north and a city in the south. Conventions had been held in the cities of Cebu, Dumaguete, Bacolod, Marawi, and Cagayan de Oro.

At this point, I should like to congratulate the present Board of Directors and the Convention staff for bringing the people in the north and south together in the interests of social science and national development. Allow me then to welcome each and everyone of you in the name of the Philippine Sociological Society, with the genuine warmth of Filipino and Visayan hospitality.