

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

FILOMENO AGUILAR, JR. is finishing a Ph.D. in Sociology at Cornell University. His fields of interest are social and economic change and development theories.

LUISA T. ENGRACIA has a Ph.D. in Sociology from Utah University. She is the Chief of the National Census and Households Survey Department of the National Statistics Office.

LORNA P. MAKIL taught at Silliman University before moving to Manila. She has an M.A. in Sociology from the University of Hawaii and is presently working with the Philippine Social Science Council (PSSC).

VIRGINIA A. MIRALAO, Ph.D. in Sociology from Cornell University, specializes in population and demography and women's studies. She is presently assigned with the United Nations Development Program in The Maldives.

MAYLING SIMPSON-HEBERT has a Ph.D. in Anthropology from the University of North Carolina. Besides having done research in the Philippines, she has also done projects in Iran and Nepal. She resides today in Geneva where she works with the World Health Organization.